DESERT HERO KNOWN TO FEW

Dog That, With Its Master, Was Savior of Many Lives, Well Cared For in Its Old Age.

Rufus, the dog hero of the desert, who has saved many lives, is ending his declining days in a dog sanatorium at Pasadena, Cal., where he is well cared for. The end of the dog is not far off, says Our Dumb Animals in a recent issue. He is spent and feeble after his many long and weary journeys over the burning and blinding sands with his pioneer master. He will no doubt soon fall asleep.

Lou Westcott Beck and Rufus were intrepid pioneers in a life-saving project that received scanty support and tardy recognition. Together they fared forth on their mission of mercy, Beck carrying signboards and cans of paint, Rufus laden with saddlebags of restoratives and poison antidote. While the man set up the guideposts, or painted the water signs, the dog succored many a prospector who otherwise would have died miserably from delirium of thirst or the venom of snake bites.

The work of these two great benefactors is over. Beck died in July, 1917, and since then the government has appropriated one hundred thousand dollars to carry on the project that he and his devoted dog started.

Rufus will be well provided for by a veterinarian who was a personal friend of Beck's. The old dog's years of hardships, of life-saving service on the desolate wastes, are not without their reward. His many friends who used to see him on the streets and pat him with approval as he started out on his desert trips will not forget him in his old age.

SCRAPPLE.

A Column of Nonsense.

The other day when we were eating our dinner in at Mrs. Lemon's Cafe, we were talking to a man about being sick and he asked us why some people object to having a quarantine sign nailed to the front of their house. We told him we could not tell and he said he wondered too. After dinner we started to work but the thought of the people who felt bad because they had to have signs on their houses, would not stay down and at last we went over to see Ed Davis. We went in without hesitating, hoping to find Ed in good humor or not at home and there he was visiting with a friend who lives on West Sixth Street. When we had talked a little we asked him about it and he said he didn't know. Then he asked us what the signs were like and we told him they were bright colored squares of pasteboard with the name of the disease on them in big black letters. He said he guessed he had seen one once when a fellow over on South Locust had one put on a house so he could lay off and get his garden planted in the spring. The man who lived on West Sixth Street said they were different colors so people could have them to suit their taste but we said we guessed maybe there was some other reason for we had seen a red card on a blue house and certainly anyone with a taste for a blue house would not want a red card or else they would have had a red house. Ed said he didn't know about that but he would think that if a man was sick enough to have a sign put up on the house telling about it, he would be sick enough to have a "furled" tongue and when he was that way he didn't have any taste for anything. We all agreed about that and then the man who lives out on West Sixth Street said he had something the matter with him recently and they didn't put a sign on his house and Ed said that was strange and he seemed to feel bad that his friend had been sick and then we said we had something the matter with us recently and they didn't put a sign on our house and Ed said of course not, we had a pull and we asked what he meant by that and we got up and started to walk around and Ed said he didn't mean anything only that we probably were so clean at our house that we didn't have any germs with our sickness and we said that was satisfactory and so we got our hat and went. And now we know.

It Makes Every Forkful of Manure Count For a Bigger Yield

Ask any user of the John Deere Spreader and he will tell you it is the best machinery investment he ever made—not only because it saves hard work and valuable time, but because it makes every forkful of manure count for a bigger crop yield.

Manure goes farther and does more good when you use a John Deere Spreader. You can spread manure evenly, heavy or light—no under-fertilized or over-fertilized spots.

Come in and see this better spreader. Here are a few things about its operating advantages we want to show you.

You get a low down spreader with high drive wheels. It is easy to load from the front to the rear and because of the high wheels and roller bearings it is light draft—a most valuable combination.

No clutches—no chains—few adjustments to cause trouble—and it is extremely simple—only about half the parts that are necessary on the ordinary spreader.

The main working parts are mounted on the rear axle, where they cannot get out of line to cause binding, heavy draft and breakage.

The beater drive is much like the simple triple geared horse-power. The gears are enclosed and run in an oil bath.

There are so many other good features about this spreader that we want you to see it. You will quickly see why there are so many satisfied users of John Deere Spreaders.

SALE OF HOGS.

On Saturday, Oct. 23 at Lexington, in the Sale Pavilion, we will sell as class an offering of Poland Chinas as will go through any sale ring this year.

We have studied the hog business from a practical farmers standpoint for 20 years and have spared no effort possible in developing that type.

The judge at the County Fair said I had a distinct large type with uniformity, smoothness and quality not found in many herds.

We appreciated the compliment most because all our winners and 27 of the 28 head shown by us were of own breeding.

From our herd of 200 head we will select 15 fall and 15 spring boar pigs including the winners. We will also include 10 sows with litters and 10 open fall gilts, and 10 stock shoats. Come, buy them at your own price. For further particulars send for a catalog to

Legal Notice. Mary E. Wolf, Charles L. Wolf, her husband, Heasle Long and Frank Long, her husband, defendants, will take notice that on the 21st day of September, 1920, George E. Slade, plaintiff herein, filed his petition in the District Court, Lincoln County, Nebraska, against said defendants the object and prayer of which is to foreclose a certain mortgage executed by the defendants Mary E. Wolf and

Charles L. Wolf to the plaintiff upon the following described real estate situated in Lincoln County, Nebraska, to-wit: The North-east quarter (NE 1/4) of Section Nineteen (19) Township Eleven (11) North of Range Thirty-two (32) West of the 6 P. M. to secure the payment of a certain promissory coupon note dated June 1st, 1915, for the sum of $700.00 due and payable on June 1st, 1920, and five certain interest coupon notes thereto attached for the sum of $42.00 each, one payable June 1st, 1916, one payable June 1st, 1917, one payable June 1st, 1918, one payable June 1st, 1919, and one payable June 1st, 1920, and also to secure the payment of taxes which the plaintiff did pay after default and neglect of said defendants to pay the same; that there is now due upon said notes and for taxes paid and on this mortgage the sum of $826.38, for which sum with interest from this date plaintiff prays for a decree that defendants be required to pay the same or that said premises may be sold to satisfy the amount found due.

You and each of you are required to answer said petition on or before the 15th day of November, 1920.

Dated this 4th day of October, 1920.

Health and Appetite

There is an old adage "thou shalt earn the bread in the sweat of thy brow." This might have been paraphrased "thou shalt earn thy appetite" because it is generally recognized that it takes labor to lend zest to appetite.

However, the facts are that the appetite is good without labor, when the body is in healthful condition. Appetite depends on healthful action of the stomach and liver. If these organs are normally vigorous, there is usually a good relish for food. The health of stomach and liver depends upon spinal nerves being free and capable of transmitting full impulse. When this is so, there is health and appetite. Chiropractic adjusting will restore the conditions of nervous freedom and vigor to stomach and liver.
